1st song

Calvin showed exceptional expressions, and I liked his rhythm. He stood in good posture, and he seemed like he loves playing his electric guitar. I was also surprised that he memorized all the notes and chords that he played in the mini concert stage. He looked like he enjoys the stage. I liked his electric guitar sound. I observed that the background music was so loud. He stepped his foot during performance, it looked very professional.

2nd song

He had good eye-contact severally unlike the first one, and I liked his "power" of playing his electric guitar. He had good movements and his electric guitar music tone was very pure. He looked excited, and he looked like he practiced many times.

3rd song

Calvin chose a song called 'payphone', and even the song includes raps. He also played electric guitar well. He also had good postures. I noticed that he does not make eyecontacts often with the audience.

I liked their movements, and they looked like they enjoy their stage and their music. Their music well blended with music, and they looked so cute and creative. One thing I notice was that the background music was too loud.

I liked the dynamics he used, and I saw his face-pale music and also heard it. I liked the tone of his music. Even he had mistakes, he didn't show it to audience. He looked very professional. He concentrated on the music of what he played.

He had a wonderful combination of guitar and his voice. His voice was firm and strong. Even though he went first, he was confident and he had consistent eye contact.

She seemed like she knew what was happening. She was relaxed and her voice was strong and I especially liked her low voice.

The piano and violin sounded great together. There were just a few minor mistakes.

They were well in tune.

She has great vibration skills, and the speed was fast but she was well accommodated to it. She seemed confident.

It was a wonderful combination of guitar, piano, and voice. The volume and posture was great.

His gitar was actually really loud, and his voice projected out and could hear it ~~from~~ the gitar.

It was first mini concert in morning but almost all of them (Gords, voice) were on tune.
louder than

While she was playing gitar and singing together, she looked cofident. Furthermore she was really on tune and tone was impressive. Also she was into the song and her expression was fantastic.

The song sounds sad and the violin could represent hope cause it is playing octive high. They also play the song together well. I think they also collaborate well too. Their posture was fascinating.

Her playing violin was really impressing. Her posture and accurring were almost perfect. The violin sounded really loud, while she played, the song made me shrill a bit because she was really good at it.

Music Journal Bubbles

I had <sup>some</sup> ~~ex~~ concerts when I was 3rd ~ 5th grades. I played piano and recorder. ~~It~~ It was succesful because many ppl saw it.

My favorite ~~part~~ aspect of performance is excited feeling when I finished it.

Major & Minor 's differences

Major is bright and happy sound, but minor is ~~a~~ kind of dark and sad sound.

How does standing with correct posture help me to sing better?

- Standing correct posture help ~~our~~ us straight and this can make ~~our~~ our voice can go up straight.

Name suggestion

His guitar sound was well blend with Background Music, and he was so confident to play guitar.

His tone quality was great, so this time, guitar was also well blend with song.

I like the song, its melody was great. The song was loud, but I could hear guitar also. Balance of guitar and song was good.

I like the song's melody. And especially, I like movements of them. I like the quiet, mood.
slow

He demonstrated the song's mood well. I like the crescendo part. It was dynamic.
